ECE Students Explore Oracle's Legacy and Future in Data Management

In a recent session organized by EAS, ECE students were introduced to the transformative journey of database technologies, with a spotlight on Oracle. The session traced the evolution from traditional file-based systems to relational and non-relational databases, offering insights into how Oracle has remained a leader through decades of innovation.

The speaker emphasized Oracle's powerful architecture, seamless SQL integration, data integrity measures, and advanced transaction management. Students also explored how Oracle is adapting to modern trends—such as cloud computing, AI-powered data handling, and NoSQL systems—meeting the growing demands of today's digital world.

The session concluded with a strong focus on database security in the era of cloud computing, showcasing how Oracle's enhanced security framework protects organizations against both internal vulnerabilities and external threats through multi-layered security solutions.

Exploring Human-Centered Design: Guest Talk on Automotive Ergonomics

As part of its ongoing efforts to enrich the academic experience, the Industrial Engineering Program welcomed Dr. Hussein Abdelmoneim from Helwan University's Mechanical Engineering Department for an insightful session on Automotive Ergonomics. Held on Wednesday, April 16th, at 12:30 PM, the talk focused on the intersection of engineering design and human comfort, emphasizing the critical role of ergonomics in vehicle development.

Dr. Abdelmoneim shared real-world applications and research findings, offering students a deeper understanding of how engineering principles are applied to optimize user experience, safety, and functionality in the automotive industry.

NU's School of Continuing Education Supports AI-Driven Language Innovation at EAGLS Annual Conference

Nile University's School of Continuing Education proudly participated in the Annual Conference of the Egyptian Association for Globalization & Language Solutions (EAGLS), held under the theme "Next-Gen Language Services: AI in Action." This two-day event brought together a dynamic mix of language experts, academics, and tech pioneers to examine the transformative impact of artificial intelligence on translation, localization, and global communication.

The conference featured engaging panel discussions, interactive workshops, and live demonstrations of cutting-edge AI tools, while also tackling the ethical and practical challenges of integrating technology into language services.

By supporting this key industry event, the School of Continuing Education reaffirmed its mission to champion lifelong learning, drive innovation, and contribute to the professional growth of Egypt's language and tech communities.

NU Students Engage in National Dialogue at the 4th Edition of “اسمع واتكلم” Forum

In line with Nile University’s mission to cultivate critical thinking, open dialogue, and civic awareness among youth, our students proudly participated in the 4th edition of the “اسمع واتكلم” Forum, organized by the Al-Azhar Observatory for Combating Extremism.

Since its inception in 2018, the forum has provided a vital platform for fostering meaningful conversations between young people and thought leaders, encouraging the exchange of ideas around pressing social and cultural issues. This year’s edition continued to challenge students to reflect deeply, speak thoughtfully, and engage with national efforts to build a more conscious and resilient society.

We commend our students for embodying Nile University’s values and contributing their voices to such a significant national initiative.

Alumni Spotlight: Nouran Mansour: From NU to the Global Stage

We are proud to celebrate the outstanding achievements of NU alumna Nouran Mansour, Class of 2024, who graduated with a bachelor's degree in business administration, majoring in Marketing.

Nouran's journey exemplifies the spirit of leadership and global citizenship. Recently selected as one of only eight delegates from the MENA region at the prestigious AFS Youth Assembly, Nouran was recognized for her impactful work and was featured as a success story in the AFS monthly newsletter.

Her commitment to youth empowerment and international dialogue also led her to represent Nile University at the 28th UN Youth Assembly in New York City, engaging with global leaders and changemakers.

Professionally, Nouran is now thriving as a Dior Media Executive at Publicis Groupe, continuing to merge her passion for marketing, communication, and global engagement.

Nouran's story is a testament to what NU graduates can achieve, and a shining example for future generations. We are excited to see how she continues to shape the world.

AFS & The Youth Assembly
Empowering Young Global Citizens to Lead

Alumni Spotlight

Delegate of Egypt Nouran Mansour

I began my journey with AFS at just 16, after winning a spot in the STEM Academy program in Brazil. That experience wasn't just a trip, it was the beginning of something much bigger. It opened my eyes to the world, to people, to purpose.

Years passed. I grew older, wiser, and maybe a little more curious about how to leave a lasting impact. At 21, I heard about the Youth Assembly from friends and fellow alumni, people I still keep in touch with to this day. Our bond was built on shared dreams, late-night debates about saving the environment, and passionate conversations about the Sustainable Development Goals.

But what inspired me most wasn't just the ideals; it was the people. Watching how we all grew and evolved over five years reminded me of one simple truth: the only constant in life is change.

The Youth Assembly brought that truth to life. It showed me how young people everywhere are adapting, creating, and leading with compassion and courage. And it reminded me that no matter where we come from, we all have the power to shape a better future together.

MENA Youth & Climate Education: A Growing Force for Change

In March, the United Nations and its partners placed a renewed focus on climate education across the MENA region — highlighting the critical role young people play in building climate resilience. This comes as part of the UNESCO Greening Education Partnership, which aims to integrate environmental and sustainability topics into school curricula worldwide.

Several MENA countries, including Jordan, Egypt, and the UAE, are now introducing climate-focused lessons, green school initiatives, and youth-led awareness campaigns. This shift is about more than knowledge — it's about preparing the next generation to lead climate solutions.

Bridging Academia and Industry: NU Students Visit Ibsina Pharma & Ramp Logistics

On April 28th, 2025, students from Nile University's Biotechnology and Supply Chain programs took part in an insightful field visit to Ibsina Pharma and Ramp Logistics Factories, two of Egypt's leading pharmaceutical distribution hubs located in the Industrial Zone of 6th of October City. Organized by the Skills and Employability Enhancement Center (SEEC), the visit offered students an in-depth look at real-world pharmaceutical operations. From advanced warehousing systems to complex logistics processes, students explored the full spectrum of pharmaceutical distribution, guided by industry professionals who shared valuable insights on innovation, quality control, and supply chain efficiency.

Beyond technical exposure, the visit opened conversations around employability, professional growth, and the evolving needs of the healthcare logistics sector. Students left with a clearer understanding of how their academic knowledge applies to practical, high-impact careers in pharmaceutical distribution.
